Help revitalize church school and become scripturally literate.

Our three books of scripture have the power to transform your personal faith journey through theological reflection that can enable, energize, sustain, and provide vision. As you join others in worship each week and commit yourself to a covenant discipleship group, you seek the articulation of, motivation for, and inspiration to celebrate and participate in the kingdom of God.

To support your personal discipleship and your congregation's church school study, the church is committed to developing and recommending faith-building and scripture study resources based on sound theological principles and scriptural interpretation. These studies will help you grow closer in your relationship with God and others, as well as prepare you to witness of the Christ, bringing joy and hope into human relationships and community life.

"Be respectful of tradition. Do not fail to listen attentively to the telling of the sacred story, for the story of scripture and of faith empowers and illuminates." --Doctrine and Covenants 161:5

Engage in learning programs to enhance ministerial effectiveness.

Today's complex world makes serious preparation for ministry essential for all who respond to God's call. God has endowed you with unique and sacred talents and gifts. Ongoing study and learning will magnify those gifts so you can better serve others.

The Community of Christ seminary, administered through Graceland University, will begin offering classes in the fall of 2002. This opportunity and other learning programs, such as Temple School, will enhance your knowledge of the scriptures and develop your ministry, skills, and competency.

"...seek learning even by study, and also by faith." --Doctrine and Covenants 85:36a
